

History of Nursing Courses

Undergraduate Courses

Nursing 230 or History 230 (cross-listed): History of Nursing

This course examines the development of Canadian nursing over the past 4 centuries, with an emphasis on the 20th century. Based on an understanding of nursing as rooted in a Christian ethos of caring for strangers, this course critically explores the ways in which religion, politics, gender, race, economics, technology, culture, war and epidemics have influenced the development of nursing both nationally and globally.

Graduate Courses

Nursing 607 or History 607: Issues in Nursing History

Graduate level courses available by special permission & structured to meet needs of individual students.
