Trinity Western University Development Officer, British Columbia

Established in 1962, Trinity Western University (TWU) is a fully accredited institution and a member of the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada since 1984. Trinity Western offers 42 undergraduate and 16 graduate degree programs. The University consistently achieves high rankings for its academic and athletic programs. TWU received five consecutive A+ ratings for quality of education in The Globe and Mail Canadian University Report, something achieved by no other university in Canada. TWU also ranked first in Canada for enriching educational experience in the 2009 National Survey of Student Engagement reported in Maclean's. TWU's basketball, volleyball and soccer teams compete in Canada's highest collegiate league and have earned national championship titles since entering the CIS league in 1999. TWU alumni are highly sought after in the marketplaces in the world and faculty excel in scholarship and teaching.

Trinity Western combines this high quality of academics with a distinctively Christ-centred approach to education. Their emphasis on whole person development, leadership, Christ-centered liberal arts, a global perspective, and Christian worldview are time-proven distinctives. The result is the transformation of students' lives—the development of skilled and godly leaders who make a positive difference in communities throughout Canada and the world.

Located in the beautiful Township of Langley British Columbia, Trinity Western is a wonderful place to enjoy both the splendor of the landscape as well as the wide variety of activities they provide.

Trinity Western University is looking for a Development Officer, British Columbia to execute an effective fundraising program in the Greater Vancouver Regional District of British Columbia through management of a portfolio of donors as well as helping to support and build effective donor strategies with other Development Representatives. This position will be responsible for functioning consistently within established University budgets, policies, and other operating procedures as required to effectively fulfill the position's responsibilities. Working with the Executive Director of Development, this role is a significant contributor to the success of the Development Office and its initiatives. With a mandate for fundraising, this role is best suited to an individual with strong relational and organizational abilities. With a commitment to embracing challenge and a strategic vision, this truly is an opportunity for someone that is seeking a rewarding opportunity to align their faith and their actions.
